

INVITATION

International online conference:

Decarbonisation of Cities through Innovative Projects and Partnerships

9.00 AM, Tuesday, 12. 3. 2024

CER Sustainable Business Network is hereby inviting you to join the international online conference on decarbonisation of cities through innovative projects and partnerships, which will take place on Tuesday 9 AM, March 12 via Zoom.

The international conference, which is being organized under the Green Penguin project, will showcase best practices of pilot projects and innovative partnerships in different European cities for green house gas emission reduction, renewable energy deployment, waste management, sustainable construction, mobility, digitisation, green jobs and green investments.

The conference will host high-level representatives from the EU Commission, Slovenian ministries and European cities, as well as professional organizations, NGOs, and businesses. By presenting innovative projects and ways of bringing together different stakeholders, the conference will aim to inspire everyone to rethink the role of cities and to recognise the benefits of working together on the path to climate neutrality. Strong support and engagement from communities and business is needed to ensure that Europe's most ambitious cities achieve climate neutrality by 2030 and the rest by 2050, in line with the goals of the Green Deal.

The international conference aims to showcase best practices of pilot projects and effective partnerships in different European cities in the areas of emission reduction, renewable energy deployment, waste management, sustainable construction and mobility, digitisation, green jobs and green investments. By presenting innovative projects and ways of bringing together different stakeholders, we aim to inspire everyone to rethink the role of cities and to recognise the benefits of working together on the path to climate neutrality.

Kind regards,
Organizer, CER Sustainable Business Network
